restoring hope . . . reconciling relationships . . . transforming lives

Welcome to “The Clinic” at Samaritan Center of Puget Sound

We are pleased that you have chosen Samaritan Center for assistance at this time in your life. We hope that you will find this to be a positive and useful experience.

About Samaritan Center

Samaritan Center of Puget Sound is accredited by the Samaritan Institute and affiliated with the Presbytery of Seattle. Our therapists come from a variety of Christian faith perspectives and represent a wide range of ages and life experiences. They are interested in and respectful of the spiritual values, beliefs and cultural heritage of all persons.

In providing therapy, we seek to engage in a process that is attentive to the integration of mind, body and spirit. We believe that healing occurs on multiple levels – mind, body, spirit and soul – and are always willing to consider with our clients the physical and spiritual as well as psychological aspects of healing. We are curious about the part that spirituality plays in wrestling with life’s dilemmas and transition points, and we bring our own heartfelt responses to the situations in which our clients find themselves. We endeavor to promote growth and well-being in our clients, engaging with them in a collaborative manner to make the changes that they desire in their lives.

THE RIGHTS OF CLIENTS IN COUNSELING

It is appropriate for clients to raise questions about the counselor, the therapeutic approach, the progress of therapy and the cost. As informed consumers, it is the client's responsibility to choose the counselor and counseling modality which best suits their needs. Clients have the right to request a change in counseling approach, referral to another counselor or termination at any time.

All therapists at SamaritanCenter of Puget Sound are bound by the ethical codes of their professional organizations, by the laws of the State of Washington, as well as by agency policy regarding the special nature of the therapist-client relationship. This agency expects all counselors continually to be aware of the influential position they hold in the relationship with clients, using this influence in a constructive way. If a client thinks his/her therapist is not meeting this ethical responsibility, he/she is strongly encouraged to address this with the therapist and/or bring it to the attention of the agency's clinical director.

We keep a record of the health care services we provide you. You may ask us to see and copy that record. You may also ask us to correct that record. We will not disclose your record to others unless you direct us to do so or unless that law authorizes or compels us to do so. To see your record or get more information about it contact your therapist.

CONFIDENTIALITY

Counseling sessions are held in strict confidence. It is the client, not the therapist, who determines whether information may be released to persons outside Samaritan, and then only with a release signed by the client. Exceptions to this rule: Washington state law mandates that there is no confidentiality when child abuse or abuse of a developmentally disabled adult has occurred within the last seven years. The counselor may also be required to break confidentiality in life-threatening situations when the client poses a clear and present danger to self or others or is unable to provide minimum life-sustaining self-care. If this occurs, the counselor will take the steps necessary to secure the safety of the client or others.

TRAINING AND PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND OF YOUR COUNSELOR

I received my Masters degree in Clinical Psychology from Seattle University in 1997 and became a Washington State Licensed Mental Health Counselor (LH#4994) in 2001. Currently, I am a pre-doctoral intern at Samaritan Center under the supervision of Mary Denny, working towards my PhD in Clinical Psychology from Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, PA. I have worked with individuals, couples, and families in a variety of counseling settings, including college counseling centers, community mental health centers, and small community non-profit organizations. Some of the therapeutic techniques I utilize include Focusing Technique (a gestalt body process awareness technique), collaborative assessment, and vocational direction.

My training and theoretical orientation have been psychodynamic and humanistic in focus. Our experiences growing up and throughout life can often lead us to feel stuck or uncertain about who we are and who we want to be. I believe that therapy can be a vehicle for the discovery of deep courage, unique healing, and faith in oneself. As a therapist, it is both my honor and responsibility to help you navigate through your struggles or questions about identity, relationships, sadness and depression, grief and loss, fear and anxiety, trauma, lifestyle patterns and choices, and hope for the future. It is my hope that together we can build a relationship of safety and trust in order to move through places of sadness, fear, and pain and towards places of healing and new opening in your life.

THE USE OF AUDIO-VISUAL RECORDINGS

In order to help you most effectively, we may ask you to videotape counseling sessions. These tapes are used by your counselor to double-check their understandings of your concerns.

All records, tapes, or other identifying materials are kept confidential. The use of observation, taping, and supervision is an integral part of our training program and allows for instruction and/or supervisory input ensuring you the highest quality services possible. If you have any questions about these practices, please discuss them with your counselor.

RISKS OF COUNSELING

We are committed to helping you make informed choices as we work with you to address your concerns. This participation includes determining how counseling might benefit you and what techniques to use to help with your concerns. At any time you may ask us to explain why we're gathering information or prescribing a new approach. We will be glad to explain the purpose behind our techniques.

The greatest risk of counseling is that it may not by itself resolve your problem or concern. Thus, we do our best to assess progress on a week-to-week basis. Chronic non-improvement is treated as a reason for immediate referral.

As a professional training facility, we keep close track of research on how to help families most efficiently with least risk. We have learned from research, for example, to minimize conflict and steer around loaded issues early in therapy. You can trust that we will use such trusted information to help you. Should we fail to help you, we'll work with you to find someone who can.

Appointment Policy: I understand that consistency in keeping appointments is integral to the counseling process. If I am unable to keep an appointment, my therapist must have 24 hours notice or I will be charged for the session.

Fee Policy: I understand that having a reduced fee in the Samaritan Clinic means that I will not use any insurance benefits when seeing a clinic provider. I understand that the fee which is arranged at the first session may be adjusted as my financial circumstances change. I agree to pay my full fee to the therapist at each session. I understand that, if I fall behind in my payments, I cannot schedule additional appointments until overdue payments have been paid.

I agree that my fee for each counseling session is $ _____ Please initial here _____
